Four charged with conspiracy in Las Vegas stabbing Four people have been charged in connection with a Las Vegas stabbing on July 8. A little more than a week before the stabbing, Las Vegas Metropolitan Police Department officers had pulled over a vehicle for an alleged DUI and arrested the vehicle's occupants, 26-year-old Joshua Michael Wright and his girlfriend, 22-year-old Nesha Daeisha Brown, according to a police report. During the traffic stop, an argument erupted, prompting officers to arrest Wright, Brown and the two occupants, a 2-year-old boy and an 18-month-old girl, on suspicion of robbery. When Las Vegas police officers transported Wright to jail, he allegedly told officers that "he had a knife at his residence and did not want the police to get hurt," the police report said. Wright was later taken into custody. He's accused of an aggravated assault on police officers. The boy and girl were placed in the care of child-welfare workers. The infant child, who was not injured in the incident, was released to an extended family member in North Las Vegas on July 10. The girl was placed in the care of child-welfare workers, police said. On July 8, police say Wright and Brown, along with an unnamed woman, "conspired to commit the crime of aggravated assault against law enforcement officers and a city employee," according to the probable cause statement. It states that Wright is accused of stabbing Brown's 2-year-old son in the back and face. The statement says Brown "suffered injuries to her face and body as well." The statement says the alleged victim was taken to a hospital and treated for injuries. The women were arrested on Wednesday on suspicion of conspiracy and child abuse resulting in death or serious bodily injury. Police say the motive behind the alleged crime was "an altercation that occurred before the stabbing." Copyright 2015 Scripps Media, Inc. All rights reserved.
