Though Photoshop is primarily used for photo editing, you can use the powerful tools in Photoshop to create drawings, videos and animations.

With an increasing variety of plug-ins and extensions available for Photoshop, it's a good idea to keep an eye on what is happening in the world of creative tools. Adobe Photoshop is probably one of the more popular and well-known software products in the world. One of the major reasons for this popularity is its versatility to create both 2D and 3D images. As a result, more and more creators are getting into the 2D arts and creation of graphic images. In this guide, we will go over the basics of Photoshop and some of the many tools that are used in it to create 2D artwork. We will start with the very basics of the Photoshop program and how it works. Just like any other 2D graphics program, you are going to have the same basic tools available to you. This includes a selection tool, color paint tools, a shape tools, a lasso tool, transform tools, and more.Q:

Remove certain numbers from end of string in c# In my application, I have a column I need to sort on by a number. What would be the best way to get the numbers out of the end of the strings in a database? For Example: "This be a very large string and the numbers are at the end." The numbers would need to be 123. The result would be: "This be a very large string and the numbers are at the end." "123" Edit: I am returning the results from a stored procedure. A: the following is the fastest way.

String str = "This be a very large string and the numbers are at the end.>"; String s = str.Substring(0, str.Length - 3); // then '123'

If you plan to pass this string to the SQL server then the best approach is to use a string parameter. A: Use a regular expression (or RegEx in .NET parlance) in combination with the Regex.Match method. Do this: `Regex.Replace(s, "[a-z]+$", "")` The regular expression pattern will remove any alphanumerics in a string. The extension method `Regex.Replace` takes an input string and

Q: UINavigationController inside another ViewController, while the second ViewController is pushed to it, it scrolls smoothly to the top of the first View Controller I have set a UINavigationController on the first ViewController. The first ViewController is pushed to it using a segue. And then I implement a tap event on the content view of the UINavigationController. The Content view of the first viewController is pushed to it. While this is happening, the navigation controller also gets scrolled automatically to the top of the first view controller. It isn't that the Navigation Controller doesn't occupy the entire screen, but the button that triggers the action does not occupy the whole screen. How can I control the scrolling of the navigation controller? I tried to change the root view controller of the app, but that did not help. A: In my iOS project, I face same issue. My solution is: Hire a code from Adobe, to put the UIWebView in top of all others views. - (void)viewDidLoad { [super viewDidLoad]; [self scrollToTop]; } - (void)scrollToTop { NSString *className = NSStringFromClass([self class]); NSString *string = [className stringByAppendingString:@"ScrollToTop"]; [self performSelector:@selector(performMethod:) withObject:string afterDelay:1]; } - (void)performMethod:(NSString *)string { UIWebView *webView = [UIWebView new]; [self.navigationController.view insertSubview:webView atIndex:0]; [webView loadRequest:[NSURLRequest requestWithURL:[NSURL URLWithString:[NSBundle mainBundle] pathForResource:string ofType:@"html"] isDirectory:NO]]; } A: For many people here, it may seem like Apple's "solution" was to completely remove the built-in UINavigationController, and instead use a UIPageViewController, a custom one that can be easily styled and configured. The real solution would be to use a

What's New in the?

An effect that is often used to alter color is the Hue/Saturation tool. Use this tool to transform colors in an image based on a color you have preselected. For example, you can click on a color and choose to make it lighter, darker, or brighter. You can make the tool work like the eyedropper tool by clicking on an area and then clicking on the eyedropper tool. There are several ways to create a custom brush in Photoshop. Click on the Brush tool and then click on the Brushes palette to access the window. On the left side of the brushes palette you can click and drag a brush to rearrange brushes on the palette. You can also right-click on a brush to change it to a different shape. Other brushes in the palette include: Zig-Zag, Splatter, Blob and Custom Shape. Brushes can be stored on the desktop so you don't have to open the Brushes palette each time you use one. A (red) brush can be used to make even parts of the image look redder, while a (green) brush can be used to make all parts of the image look greener. To change a brush's color, click on the Brush Tool on the Tools palette and choose a color from the Color Picker. You can also change the color of the brush by double clicking on the brush. One of the more useful and unexpected features of Photoshop is the Airbrush tool. Click on the Airbrush tool and use this brush to paint in various effects. The newly-added 3D Brush tool allows you to change the way an object looks as the camera moves. To use this tool, you can click on the camera icon in the top left corner of the Photoshop window. Then, drag a brush anywhere on the canvas. An object you paint with this tool looks the same when you move the camera and when the camera is still. But if you scroll the camera window, the object will appear to change. The Blurr tool creates blur with a brush. To use this tool, click on the Blurr tool and then click on an area of your image. The size and intensity of the blur are indicated by a slider at the top of the brush tool. An effect that may be useful is a Refine Edge tool. This tool allows you to erase elements of an image that are hard to see. To use this tool, click on
