Main menu Work History With a variety of experience in management, education and the arts, I have worked in a range of roles at the same time exploring and enjoying these various areas of life and working closely with a variety of individuals. I worked for several years in the art industry as an art director and designer for various musicians and artists. More recently I have embarked on a new career, bringing a creative approach to education through developing and delivering a number of courses. Currently I am a full-time accredited teacher, working as head of Advanced Communication and Media Studies at the University of Nottingham. I recently returned to teaching after working for some years as an Arts Entrepreneur.Traveller - Reading Traveller - Reading Welcome to Traveller - Reading! The Traveller - Reading History Group meets at St. Barbara's Church, Woking, Surrey, where we hold occasional events in our shared hall. Interested in the history of Woking and the surrounding area? Come along and join us! There are no less than three visits to Woking and the surrounding area every week - and we have some very interesting and lively speakers to entertain us. In addition we hold a very interesting and informative talk on the Tourist Shuttle Bus Experience, which we hold twice per month (see our Facebook page for details). The group is currently chaired by John T. Please come along, join in with us and find out more about history and Woking. The name does nothing to indicate what the character's identity is and all it does is cast doubt on how good a writer Michael Cassutt is. Although Steve Jobs didn't invent the Mac (that honor is reserved for Jobs' former competitor Al Novoselzer) he single handedly rebooted and modernized the Mac platform and through the combination of an unbelievable amount of hard work, an unprecedented amount of business focus and his formidable leadership, took his Mac line to new heights. Apple and its shareholders have benefitted tremendously from Jobs' work and his leadership, which has resulted in Apple Inc. and its shareholders having unparalleled profitability and market share. Further, the Mac platform now powers most of Apple's current revenue generating products including iPhone, iPad and iPod. We've all benefited greatly from Jobs' work. There are thousands of businesses and Apple's customers who can say the same. None of them got rich by listening to a very long, over-the-top rant. The
