This technology offers more intelligent artificial intelligence for player reaction to the ball and their teammates, so you can predict how and when each player will move to make their next action. It also improves ball physics. The improved ball physics also means that FIFA 22 will include passing animations for the first time. You will be able to see your teammate control the ball and set up attacks, similar to a virtual reality experience. “We’ve looked at data from the most intense matches in real time to bring the fans closer to the action than ever before,” explains Joey Losi, Producer on FIFA 21 and FIFA 22. “We’re excited to offer them the deepest, most authentic football experience on any console, and now on the PC.” “FIFA 20 was the first game to include the ‘bigger, stronger and faster’ style of gameplay,” explains Josh Sperber, Senior Producer, FIFA. “In FIFA 22, we’re adding more realism to gameplay by giving players even more control over the ball. We’re excited for fans to experience the new depth that comes with new motion capture technology, and to provide a football experience that enhances the excitement and accessibility of FIFA on any platform.” FIFA 22 will be available on Windows PC and Windows Console, along with Xbox One, PlayStation 4 and Nintendo Switch.
