sleeved on the shaft of the motor and the wheel is sleeved on the shaft. the bearing is disposed between the wheel and the ceiling fan housing and is mounted on the shaft. the shaft hole is defined through the ceiling fan housing and is communicated with the interior of the ceiling fan housing for receiving the shaft of the motor. however, the shaft hole is usually not able to be adjusted in the height direction. therefore, the wheel is easily to be turned by the user and is easily to be rotated even when the shaft hole is not adjusted in the height direction. the present invention has arisen to mitigate and/or obviate the afore-described disadvantages of the conventional ceiling fans. the primary objective of the present invention is to provide a ceiling fan having a movable motor for allowing a user to adjust an operation angle of the ceiling fan in a height direction. in accordance with one aspect of the invention, there is provided a ceiling fan comprising a ceiling fan housing, a motor, a shaft, a wheel, a bearing, and a shaft hole defined through the ceiling fan housing. the ceiling fan housing includes a bottom wall and a pair of side walls extending upwardly from the bottom wall. the bottom wall has a top wall and the side walls each has a curved surface extending from the top wall. the curved surfaces of the side walls each define an arc. the motor is sleeved on the shaft of the ceiling fan housing. the wheel is sleeved on the shaft. the shaft hole is defined through the bottom wall of the ceiling fan housing and is communicated with the interior of the ceiling fan housing for receiving the shaft of the motor. the wheel is slidably engaged in the shaft hole for allowing the shaft of the motor to be adjusted in the height direction. the motor may be a dc motor and may be disposed on the shaft. the bearing may be a ball bearing and may be disposed on the shaft.
